

About.lifescape(the high-brow complex version)

We host a field for looking.

The works stand as themselves—made from life, meeting you on their own terms.

No single reading is required. Different eyes, different maps.

Process is visible. Traces remain: study, pause, misstep, continuation.

The room is horizontal: no one is guru, everyone is guru; authority moves as care.

If there is an ethic, it is non-domination.

If there is a method, it is to stay with what is present long enough for it to disclose its own logic.

The octagram-tesseract mark (projection of an n-hypercube) signals multipartiality: more than one centre, more than one path.

Enter as witness.

Take from the work what it offers – no more, no less.

About.lifescape(the 'mere-mortals' friendly version)

This is a place to look.

Works come from life and meet you as they are.

No single answer. Each person brings their own eyes.

You can see the making—stop, try again, carry on.

Room is flat: no big boss, no small voice. We share care.

We don't force meaning. We stay with what is here and let it show itself.

The star-and-box sign means: many sides, many paths.

Come, witness. Take what the work gives—nothing more, nothing less.

Complex:

A field for looking and seeing. Objects speak for themselves.
Many sides, no grand reading; care circulates.

Friendly:

Come look. Works meet you as they are.
Many sides, no one story; we care.
